FOREWORD

It is impossible to speak of The High Republic without mentioning the people who created it. The people who found themselves in the characters. The people of our little part of the internet who made friends and found comfort and hope through our mutual love of The High Republic. Would we ever have thought that this corner of the galaxy, which years ago we couldn't have even comprehended, would bring us all together in one of our darkest times?

2020 was a hard year for all of us. A year of tremendous loss, isolation, and more fear than hope. Personally, I was a new mom with postpartum depression and a loss that had shaken my world. I didn't see much to look forward to. Then I received a message that changed my life. Would I like to host a bi-monthly show on StarWars.com that covered the still codenamed "Project Luminous"? I said, "YES!"

Little did I know what would come from that "Yes." I didn't know that it would bring me "The Luminous Five," Cavan Scott, Charles Soule, Claudia Gray, Justina Ireland, and Daniel José Older. Alongside Lucasfilm Editorial and Story Group, the Five are the architects of Phase I of The High Republic. People who not only touched me with their words but with their acts of kindness. I also came into contact with so many wonderful and dedicated teams at Lucasfilm, especially the Online team and everyone involved in The High Republic Show. Each person brings their immense talent to every bit of content.

Our High Republic family continued to grow with the Phase II additions of Kristin Bayer, Lydia Kang, Tessa Gratton, George Mann, and Zoraida Córdova. It continues to grow with Phase III (hi, Alyssa Wong). It grows with the book you hold in your hands now, which welcomes Amy Richau and Megan Crouse to our ever-expanding family.

We all have the piece of Star Wars that serves as our entry point into a lifetime of fandom. If this book is your first foray into The High Republic, or even Star Wars: welcome. May you fall in love with the characters. May you feel welcome into this community that will greet you with love and light. May the pictures and stories spark your curiosity and imagination. May they remind you that no matter how dark the days may seem, we all share a love of story and Star Wars that can serve as a light in the dark... a beacon if you will.

Krystina Arielle

Host of Star Wars: The High Republic Show

INTRODUCTION

The High Republic era, approximately 500–100 years before the fall of the Republic, is a golden age of progress. The Galactic Republic and Jedi Order work together as explorers and peacekeepers, heading ever further into the deepest reaches of the galaxy to help those in need. Hyperspace prospectors, such as the powerful Graf and San Tekka families, seek their fortunes and expand the frontier by discovering new routes through hyperspace.

It is a time of industry and splendor. The Republic and the Jedi work together to build the space station Starlight Beacon, which stands as a glorious testament to this period of cooperation and prosperity. The Jedi Order builds outposts in far-flung regions where it believes its presence can make a difference.

The galaxy is home to many groups who, like the Jedi, are centered around a connection or devotion to the Force. Some of these sects have more extreme philosophies than others, but the Convocation of the Force—a group based in the Holy City of Jedha—aims to bring them all together, to reach an understanding, and to build relationships.

Much of the galaxy is still undiscovered by the Republic, and dangers from the unknown are hard to foresee. Pirates and mercenaries attack remote communities and travelers. Criminal organizations, such as the Hutts, wield great influence in the areas under their control. And groups such as the mysterious Path of the Open Hand and, later, the chaotic and ruthless Nihil, seek to gain power by attacking the Jedi Order.

HOW TO USE THIS BOOK

Star Wars: The High Republic: Character Encyclopedia is an exploration of more than 275 characters, offering information about their backgrounds and fates. Entries in this book are organized according to the faction with which each character is associated. There is also an index at the back of the book.

The dating system in the book uses BBY, an indicator of how many years before the Battle of Yavin an event takes place. The Battle of Yavin was a critical event first depicted in Star Wars: Episode IV A New Hope.

The High Republic publishing initiative is split into three phases. There are icons in the top right corners of entries to signify which phase the characters appear in.

PHASE II

The Quest of the Jedi
c.500 BBY–382 BBY

PHASE I

The Light of the Jedi
252 BBY–229 BBY

PHASE III

The Trials of the Jedi
229 BBY–c.220 BBY

KEY TO FIRST APPEARANCES IN DATA FILES

Each character's data file refers to their first appearance within a piece of High Republic media. For example, the legendary Maz Kanata debuted in Star Wars: Episode VII The Force Awakens, but her data file lists her first appearance as Star Wars: The High Republic Adventures (Phase I). Any characters that do not currently feature in any High Republic media will list their first appearance in a piece of Star Wars media set during the timeframe of the High Republic.

THE JEDI

The rallying cry of the Jedi, "For light and life!" inspires hope in all who hear it. Bonded by the beliefs and actions of the ancient Jedi Order, each Knight pursues their own unique connection with the Force.

PEACEFUL GROWTH

The High Republic is an era of peace for the Jedi. Lightsaber techniques and defensive use of the Force are taught in temples, but no Jedi expects much combat in their lifetime. Jedi believe that they need to keep their emotions in balance, but they are open-minded and accepting of those who choose a different path. The headquarters of the Order is on Coruscant and, as the Republic continues to grow, a number of Jedi outposts are set up throughout the galaxy.

GALACTIC ALLIES

The Jedi work closely with the leaders of the Republic, but neither is beholden to the other. The renowned space station Starlight Beacon, built in partnership between the Republic and the Jedi, reflects what both feel about the galaxy at this time: the future is bright.

THE JEDI

The Jedi Order is the largest and most influential group of Force-sensitive beings in the galaxy. Its members study ancient teachings and train to enhance their connection to the Force. The Order believes that personal attachments, such as romantic relationships, will distract Jedi from their duties. However, the Jedi are family to one another.

THE LIFE OF A JEDI

Many Jedi come to the Order as younglings. They learn to control the Force through meditation while honing their abilities to perform amazing feats of acrobatics and levitation, bonding with others who do the same. When they are ready, they become Padawans and are paired with an experienced Jedi, who becomes their master.

The master guides them to connect with the Force and instructs them on the role of the Jedi in the galaxy. The bond between master and Padawan becomes one of the most important relationships in a Jedi's life.

GROWING UP

When a Padawan overcomes the challenge of their Jedi Trial, they will become a Jedi Knight. At this point, they cut off their Padawan braid (if they have one) and no longer need to be accompanied by a master. They can choose their own missions and, perhaps, go on to train a Padawan of their own. Knights continue to develop their skills and acquire new knowledge, and, if the Council sees fit, they may eventually go on to attain the rank of Jedi Master.

OTHER PATHS

Being a Jedi isn't only about going on important missions. Some choose to study the writings of those who came before, while others focus on healing, governing, or teaching. Jedi who fall outside the traditional system still have a place in the Order. Wayseekers follow their own instincts. Though they don't carry out the directions of the Jedi Council, they are still welcomed by it. Some Jedi choose to take the Barash Vow of inaction, cutting themselves off from the rest of the Order and focusing only on their connection to the Force. Some Force users come across the Order later in life. They may be invited to live alongside the Padawans and learn the ways of the Jedi.

THE HIGH COUNCIL

The Jedi Council leads the Order and makes important decisions for its day-to-day direction, and for the future. Chosen for their experience and accomplishments, Council members have the ear of the Republic Senate and chancellor, and are often who the Republic turns to when it needs help. The Jedi do not answer to the Republic, but their hopes for peace and justice often overlap, leading to many collaborative missions, projects, and initiatives that share the same goals.

PORTER ENGLE

THE BLADE OF BARDOTTA

PRONOUNS: He/him
SPECIES: Ikkrukkian
HEIGHT: 1.93 m (6 ft 4 in)

ALLEGIANCE: Jedi Order
FIRST APPEARANCE: LotJ

Porter Engle is one of the most highly regarded duelists in the Jedi Order, whose skills with a lightsaber are unparalleled and admired across the galaxy. In his later years, Porter gains a new reputation as an excellent cook with an easygoing manner. Growing up in the Jedi Temple, he developed a close bond with fellow youngling Barash Silvain.

COUNCIL CONCERN

Porter and Barash are so inseparable that the Jedi Council wants to split them up, concerned about their attachment. However, the younglings hatch a plan. They each concentrate on different skills—Porter on lightsaber combat and telekinesis, and Barash on sensing the energy of the Force and telling truth from lies—making them more powerful as a pair. The two sometimes train separately, but the Council never forces them apart.

BATTLE ON GANSEVOR

Under siege, the envoy of the planet Gansevor sends out a call for help to the Jedi, and Porter and Barash answer. Porter is determined to save lives while there, and is adamant that he won't kill or be used as a soldier in someone else's war.

When a battle breaks out, Barash shows her trust in the Force and Porter as she walks through a rain of blaster fire without fear because she knows Porter has her back.

"NO ONE SHOULD BE HUNGRY."

— Porter Engle

Almost single-handedly, Porter takes on the mercenary General Viess and her army. The Jedi is careful not to kill, instead making blasters leap out of people's hands, even when they intend to use full force against him. Porter's lightsaber blade moves quickly and precisely, cutting at the weaker material that holds Viess' beskar armor together. Viess can't gain the upper hand, so she throws an explosive into the crowd, knowing Porter will abandon their duel to save the lives of others. While Porter does just as she predicted, Viess uses the moment to flee.

COOKING IN THE WILDERNESS

Porter withdraws from frontline combat after experiencing a devastating trauma. Later in his long Ikkrukkian life, he enjoys cooking at a Jedi outpost on Elphrona. He continues to use his lightsaber skills, though he is more likely to be found slicing ingredients for a new dish than dueling.

MEMORIES FROM LONG AGO

Porter later rejoins the Jedi on the front lines and, during the Nihil attack on Valo, uses a form of battle meditation to unite the minds of other Jedi to fly their starships in formation with his. He later shares memories of his eventful past, including recollections of his time as the legendary "Blade of Bardotta."

VILDAR MAC

HAUNTED JEDI KNIGHT

PRONOUNS: He/him

SPECIES: Kiffar

HEIGHT: 1.91 m (6 ft 3 in)

ALLEGIANCE: Jedi Order

FIRST APPEARANCE: THR (PII)

Vildar Mac is a gruff, serious Jedi Master who is sent on assignment to the Holy City on Jedha, where he works alongside Padawan Matthea Cathley. The duo investigate one of the many relics that have recently gone missing in the city. Vildar is surprised to learn that many civilians on Jedha do not have favorable opinions of the Jedi. He uses Force visions to help during his missions, but the visions are hard to control and take a large toll on him.

TRAUMATIC PAST

Vildar is haunted by a childhood memory from before he joined the Jedi Order. As a four-year-old, he witnessed a stranger—one of the Sorcerers of Tund—kill several people in his village on Kiffex. Vildar felt a darkness from this evildoer that he never forgot. Years later, Jedi Master Larti saved Vildar, and took him as his Padawan.

TROUBLES ON JEDHA

Vildar panics when he sees the Sorcerer of Tund Tarna Miak in the streets of Jedha—he fears Miak will be as dangerous as the villain who terrified him as a child. Later, the Herald of the Path of the Open Hand causes a riot on the steps of the Convocation of the Force, and Vildar is overcome with terror and confusion when a Nameless creature is unleashed in the Holy City.

"I DON'T NEED RESPECT—I ONLY NEED THE FORCE."

— Vildar Mac

UNLIKELY ALLIES

Vildar is at first frustrated and irritated by the eccentric Tey Sirrek, who is also investigating the stolen relics on Jedha. Yet Vildar and Tey soon form a close bond. Vildar questions whether the Guardians of the Whills are unfairly blaming Sirrek for recent thefts, and Sirrek comes to Vildar's aid when he is trapped under a building during the Battle of Jedha. When Vildar believes Sirrek has been killed by the Path of the Open Hand, he renounces the light side of the Force and momentarily touches the dark side. After the battle, Vildar takes up a position on the Convocation and asks Sirrek to join him.

YODA

LEGENDARY GRAND MASTER

PRONOUNS: He/him

SPECIES: Unknown

HEIGHT: 66 cm (2 ft 2 in)

ALLEGIANCE: Jedi Order

FIRST APPEARANCE: LotJ

Grand Master Yoda has been training young Jedi with his signature combination of mischievousness and mystery for hundreds of years. He rarely says exactly what he's thinking, preferring to hint and guide his students—allowing them to make mistakes so they can figure out his lessons on their own.

AN IMPORTANT LESSON

Yoda sometimes goes on missions for long periods of time. After he receives a distress call from the planet Turrak, he spends months there despite the other Council members wanting him to come back. The Scalvi people of Turrak are being attacked by Crulkon raiders. Yoda teaches the Scalvi to build defenses while advising them not to become aggressors.

He lets himself be captured to test what a young Scalvi, Bree, will do when faced with violence. Bree kills a Crulkon, failing the test. Yoda leaves Turrak for the length of a Scalvi generation, and returns when Bree is an adult. This time, Bree understands what Yoda was trying to show him years ago—the Crulkon were starving and desperate. Bree makes peace, and Yoda asks the Jedi to send an environmental team to find out why the fish the Crulkon survived on disappeared.

WISE MENTOR

Yoda is still on the Jedi Council 150 years later. He's trained a lot of Jedi over the years, including his Padawan Kantam Sy, against whom he often practices dueling. When Kantam considers leaving the Jedi Order to build a life with their partner, Yoda listens to their concerns and lets them depart. Years later, Yoda welcomes Kantam back to the Order and names them a Jedi Knight.

LIFETIME OF SERVICE

Yoda takes a break from Coruscant to train younglings on board the starship academy Star Hopper. The ship diverts from its usual course to respond to a call for help in the Trymant system. There, Yoda clashes with Marchion Ro and the Nihil. He also recruits Zeen Mrala, a Force-sensitive girl, to help the Jedi on board the space station Starlight Beacon. Yoda later encounters Elder Tromak, an Elder of the Path of the Open Hand cult, who had been present when the Path finally fell.

ANCIENT SECRETS

Yoda stands alongside Grand Master Pra-Tre Veter as he offers Jedi Master Avar Kriss the role of Marshal of Starlight Beacon. Sometime before the fall of the space station, Yoda goes on another mysterious journey where he aims to learn more about the past to help save people in the present.

YODA'S RETURN

When the Nihil attack Corellia, Yoda fights alongside Kantam Sy, Reath Silas, Zeen Mrala, Cohmac Vitus, and Ram Jomaram. Afterward, Yoda joins Cohmac and Kantam in awarding Reath the rank of Jedi Knight. When Cohmac declares he's decided to leave the Order, Yoda lets him go with a nod.

KEEVE TRENNIS

BOLD JEDI KNIGHT

PRONOUNS: She/her

SPECIES: Human

HEIGHT: 1.68 m (5 ft 6 in)

ALLEGIANCE: Jedi Order

FIRST APPEARANCE: AToC

Things don't always go as planned for passionate and determined Jedi Keeve Trennis, but that doesn't stop her from forging her way through difficult situations. Keeve sometimes doubts herself, yet she's a born leader and a loyal friend to her fellow Jedi. Able to sense when things are amiss, Keeve will do all she can to protect those in need, and she regularly finds unique solutions to conflicts.

JEDI TRIALS

Keeve's Jedi Trials do not go as she'd expected. Tasked with retrieving an artifact known as a Tythonian pendant, Keeve is interrupted by a swarm of destructive star-locusts. She quickly adapts and helps divert them back to their original path through space. Keeve's smart ideas stop the locusts from causing more damage, and prove her readiness to be a Jedi Knight.

MIND GAMES

As a Jedi Knight, Keeve takes great risks to protect others from the carnivorous, plantlike Drengir. On the planet Sedri Minor, she discovers that her former master, Sskeer, is under Drengir influence. Keeve uses a mind touch to slow the Drengir down, and she even joins Sskeer inside the Drengir's root-mind, at great personal cost. She helps the Jedi find the source Drengir, the Great Progenitor, on the planet Mulita. Keeve agrees to let herself be infected by the Drengir to see if there's a way to stop them for good.

NOT BACKING DOWN

While Keeve is in awe of the Jedi Knights and Masters on Starlight Beacon, she doesn't shy away from arguing with them, presenting a different point of view or disobeying their orders completely. Keeve refuses to believe Sskeer's value to the Jedi is lost, even when she learns of his serious condition. She also stands up to Avar Kriss in No-Space when she sees that Kriss' desire for revenge against Louna Dee and the Nihil has clouded her judgment. Keeve helps steer Kriss back to the light, reminding her that mercy is a strength rather than a weakness of the Jedi. Keeve's bravery and fierce loyalty to her friends quickly cast her as a Jedi Knight others can trust and look up to.

STELLAN GIOS

THE JEDI'S GUIDING STAR

PRONOUNS: He/him

SPECIES: Human

HEIGHT: 1.80 m (5 ft 11 in)

ALLEGIANCE: Jedi Order

FIRST APPEARANCE: LotJ

Master Stellan Gios is a firm believer in the traditions of the Jedi Order. He sits on the Jedi Council, offering leadership and guidance in the uncertain times following the Nihil attacks. Along with his friends, Avar Kriss and Elzar Mann, Stellan is one of the foremost Jedi Masters of his age. He considers his group of friends as a constellation of three stars.

STELLAR RISE

Stellan is an accomplished Jedi, but during his training he sometimes struggled, unlike Avar and Elzar. As a Padawan under Master Rana Kant, Stellan wasn't always so devout, often getting in trouble along with his friends. Later, as a Jedi Master himself, Stellan befriends and trains the confident and talented Padawan Vernestra Rwoh.

PROTECTIVE SHIELD

During the Great Disaster, Stellan protects the people of Ta'klah from falling space debris. He leaps to the rescue from his flying Vector ship, shielding a child with the Force. Stellan then instructs the people of Ta'klah to run. He is promoted to the Jedi Council shortly after.

FAIR AND FOUL

Stellan helps organize the Jedi delegation to the Republic Fair on Valo, where he is assigned to protect Chancellor Lina Soh. At the Fair, Stellan comes up against former Jedi Ty Yorrick, who is employed by someone trying to sell a machine that can disrupt lightsabers. He confronts her and they duel, with Ty almost killing Stellan.

"NO JEDI IS EVER ALONE. WE ARE UNITED IN THE FORCE."

— Stellan Gios

Later, during the Nihil attack on the Fair, Stellan tries to get Soh and others to safety. He demonstrates his conviction that the Force should only be used defensively as he uses it to blow away the Nihil's poisonous war gas and to shield people without striking back.

LOYAL FRIEND

Stellan is open-minded and caring, happy to listen without judgment. When Elzar confides that he has touched the dark side, Stellan reassures his friend and suggests they take a meditation retreat to Jedha to ensure Elzar stays on the path of the light side.

NOBLE END

Stellan serves as temporary Marshal of Starlight Beacon, the symbol of the Republic's presence in the Outer Rim. When the station crashes toward the planet Eiram, Stellan remains on board to operate the navigation controls and guide it away from a busy city. Starlight crashes into the ocean, killing Stellan but saving thousands of lives on the ground.

AVAR KRISS

MARSHAL OF STARLIGHT BEACON

PRONOUNS: She/her

SPECIES: Human

HEIGHT: 1.73 m (5 ft 8 in)

ALLEGIANCE: Jedi Order

FIRST APPEARANCE: LotJ

Deeply loyal to the Jedi Order, Avar Kriss is one of the most powerful and respected Jedi Masters of her time. Raised and trained in the Coruscant Temple alongside her best friends, Stellan Gios and Elzar Mann, Avar soon rose through the ranks of the Order. All Jedi are encouraged to connect with the Force in their own way. Avar sees it as music and thinks of herself and her fellow Jedi as a great chorus. Others look up to her, and her guidance and empathy help shape the Order.

THE GREAT DISASTER

Avar's leadership skills save many lives after the ship Legacy Run tears apart in hyperspace and its plummeting debris puts the planets of the Hetzal system at risk. Avar coordinates a group of Jedi to help, connecting them all through the Force. She rescues refugees and prevents a cargo ship full of flammable tibanna gas from exploding.

This Great Disaster marks the first conflict between the Jedi and the Nihil, which eventually leads to a fierce rivalry between Avar and high-ranking Nihil Louna Dee. It is also pivotal to Avar being named Marshal of Starlight Beacon, the Republic's Outer Rim space station, built as a symbol of hope, and to invite other star systems into the Republic.

CLASH WITH THE DRENGIR

In one of the first clashes between the Jedi and the carnivorous Drengir creatures, the brainwashed Jedi Master Sskeer captures Avar on the planet Sedri Minor. Avar narrowly escapes, along with fellow Jedi Keeve Trennis and Sskeer, who is no longer under Drengir control. The Hutts have a stake on Sedri Minor, and—in a rare moment of diplomacy—they agree to fight alongside Avar and the Jedi. They eventually chase the Drengir to their Great Progenitor, the being who links her root-mind to the others, and capture her for study.

LIGHT OF THE JEDI

Avar's compassionate and optimistic nature sometimes clashes with a sense of duty that pushes her to fight on, no matter the odds.

Her focus on pursuing Louna Dee, whom she believes to be the leader of the Nihil, causes other Jedi to worry that Avar is too focused on a personal grudge. Later, Avar tries and fails to save fellow Jedi Estala Maru during the fall of Starlight Beacon, leaving her with deep guilt about losing the station and the people within.

ELZAR MANN

CHARMING MAVERICK

PRONOUNS: He/him

SPECIES: Human

HEIGHT: 1.80 m (5 ft 11 in)

ALLEGIANCE: Jedi Order

FIRST APPEARANCE: LotJ

Elzar Mann is a Jedi who constantly pushes boundaries. He sees the Force as a deep, dark ocean, and sometimes he's tempted to jump in. He often meditates in water, too. Elzar's focus on solving problems no matter the cost and his interest in experimenting with the Force make him a maverick within the Jedi Order. Despite his feelings of duty to the Order, Elzar struggles with finding balance in the Force and he sometimes gives in to his emotions. Elzar reflects carefully on his actions, and is hard on himself when he makes mistakes. He travels a bumpy path, but Elzar is determined to find the right balance.

CRISIS TEAM

Elzar was trained by Jedi Master Roland Quarry and became close friends with Avar Kriss and Stellan Gios. As Padawans, Elzar and Avar become close, but honor the Jedi rule of nonattachment. Elzar, Avar, and Stellan fight side by side during the Great Disaster on Hetzal. Working together with Republic analyst Keven Tarr, Elzar and Avar save many lives by building a network of droid processors that calculates where dangerous debris is likely to emerge from hyperspace.

DARK CLOUDS OVERHEAD

When the Nihil attack the Republic Fair on Valo, Elzar taps into the dark side of the Force to throw the Fair's floating pavilions at the pirate fleet. Afterward, Elzar admits his failings to Stellan. Instead of criticizing, his friend is sympathetic and recommends that Elzar take some time to communicate with the Force on the moon of Jedha. Elzar later trains with Jedi Wayseeker Orla Jareni. She helps him find balance with the Force by showing him that he should listen to the Force but not be overwhelmed by it.

– Elzar Mann

STARLIGHT BEACON RESCUE

Elzar and Orla are on board the Starlight Beacon when the Nihil attack. They join Stellan in keeping people calm and evacuating as many as possible. Elzar coordinates a team of astromech droids to take the station apart from the inside, giving trapped civilian ships a way to escape. Calling on the Force more strongly than he has in a long time, Elzar opens the station's gigantic bay doors and tries to steer the crashing Starlight Beacon away from the planet Eiram.

During the rescue, Elzar kills ex-Nihil scientist Chancey Yarrow, thinking she is sabotaging the system, when really she is trying to repair the thrusters. Elzar later reunites with Avar. He must live with the guilt of knowing he killed Chancey when the scientist could have helped save the station.

PRONOUNS: He/him

SPECIES: Twi'lek

HEIGHT: 1.96 m (6 ft 5 in)

FIRST APPEARANCE: LotJ

One of the most respected Jedi Masters, Loden Greatstorm is highly skilled in combat, but he knows that the most powerful leaders can prevent violence before it starts. Loden has years of Jedi experience that enables him to make smart, informed decisions during moments of conflict. As Bell Zettifar's master, he pushes his student to embrace failure as a part of the learning process.

TRAGIC END

Brave, wise, and patient, Loden is admired by his fellow Jedi, which makes his kidnapping by the Nihil all the more unsettling. During his captivity, Loden finds the strength to connect back to the Force and briefly escapes, but he is killed by the Nameless creature known as the Leveler soon after.

Sskeer prefers to go barefoot

PRONOUNS: He/him
SPECIES: Trandoshan
HEIGHT: 1.68 m (5 ft 6 in)

FIRST APPEARANCE: LotJ

Known as a strong, blunt Jedi Master, Sskeer is also a compassionate mentor. He is very proud of his Padawan, Keeve Trennis, and pushes her to believe in herself. Sskeer is diagnosed with Magrak syndrome, a rare disease that causes him to experience aggressive urges. The syndrome damages Sskeer's connection with the Force.

UNKNOWN FUTURE

Because Magrak syndrome has no cure, Avar Kriss wants to relieve Sskeer of his Jedi duties. Yet, during the fall of Starlight Beacon, Sskeer's weaker Force connection means the Nameless creatures do not affect him. This allows him to push them back while other Jedi evacuate the space station.

"BEING A JEDI IS ABOUT CHOOSING THE LIGHT OVER AND OVER AGAIN."

PRONOUNS: She/her

She feels an uncanny connection to hyperspace, often falling into confusing visions during faster-than-light jumps. Vernestra wields a purple-bladed lightsaber that transforms into a rare lightwhip.

FINDING A FRIEND

Despite her young age, Vernestra trains a Padawan of her own, Imri Cantaros. Sometimes, Vernestra's confidence can come off as dismissive, but she has a strong sense of empathy toward others. She likes to focus on her training and is not distracted by the idea of romance. In fact, she talks to Imri about her experiences as someone who is aromantic, which means she is not interested in romance with anyone.

Beyond the Abyss, Dagan discovers a beautiful world that he names "Tanalorr." He records the journey on one of Santari's compasses so their Republic allies can follow. Dagan petitions the Jedi Order to set up a new temple outpost on Tanalorr where younglings can be trained, and construction begins. However, the Nihil manage to locate Tanalorr and attack the temple. Following the attack, the Jedi Council orders Dagan and Santari to abandon the planet and destroy Santari's compasses—the only way to reach the world. An incensed Dagan turns on his fellow Jedi and is defeated by Santari, who leaves him to heal in a bacta tank on Koboh.

SANTARI KHRI

NOTED JEDI SCIENTIST

PRONOUNS: She/her

SPECIES: Human

HEIGHT: 1.70 m (5 ft 7 in)

ALLEGIANCE: Jedi Order

FIRST APPEARANCE: J: S

Renowned scientist Santari Khri leads a team of Jedi and Republic researchers analyzing the unique properties of Koboh Matter, an element native to the Koboh system. Together with her partner, Jedi Dagan Gera, Santari builds huge ground-to-space arrays that clear a path through a space storm known as the Koboh Abyss. This allows the Jedi to locate the hidden world of Tanalorr, where they build a training outpost.

PARTNERS SEPARATED

When an Emergence—a chunk of falling space debris—comes out of hyperspace and shatters Koboh’s moon, the ensuing disaster forces the Jedi and Republic to evacuate Koboh. Santari doesn’t have enough time to travel to the facility where an injured Dagan is healing. Instead, she sends a trusted droid named ZN-A4 to wake him when it’s safe. However, on its way, the droid is trapped by collapsing structures so, while Santari returns to Coruscant, Dagan remains behind on the abandoned planet.

Centuries later, prospectors and settlers who come to call Koboh home make use of Santari’s scientific discoveries, which help them traverse and explore the planet.

THREATS TO THE JEDI

The Jedi of the High Republic find themselves battling pirates, outlaws, marauders, and monsters. Some threats linger at the edge of known Republic space, while others lie dormant for centuries until they are awakened once more.

PIRATES

The most pressing threat is the Nihil, a group of chaotic pirates. Each Nihil fights for plunder and for the respect (or fear) of their fellows. Eye of the Nihil, Marchion Ro, maintains his leadership because he has access to a mysterious source of precious hyperspace paths.

MONSTERS

Generations before the creation of Starlight Beacon, the Path of the Open Hand—a reclusive cult—discovers mysterious creatures that feed on the Force. Known as the Nameless, they are living weapons against Force-sensitive beings.

With a similarly insatiable appetite, the Drengir are a species of plantlike life-forms, which hunger for living prey. They have a strong connection to the dark side, which is passed down to them through a bond with their Progenitor.

CRIMINALS

A thriving trade exists among big gangs, small-time smugglers, outlaws, and thieves. Many of them will stop at nothing to continue their underworld activities. Although the Jedi are at the height of their power, the dark threats they face will always give them something to fear.

PATH OF THE OPEN HAND

The Jedi are far from the only group in the galaxy built around the Force. The Path of the Open Hand is a small cult that has settled on the planet Dalna. The lies of its leader, the Mother, lead the group to clash with the Jedi. Path members live simple lives, though the cult has one extravagance: its mighty flagship, the Gaze Electric.

BELIEFS ABOUT THE FORCE

Instead of finding their own unique way of understanding or connecting to the Force, Path members are forbidden entirely from using it. They accept its mystical power and revere it, but believe that using it—even to help others—will always lead to harm being done somewhere else. Since the Jedi tap into their connection to the Force so often, the Path considers them enemies who continually throw the Force out of balance and increase the amount of suffering in the galaxy.

Path members honor “gifts freely given,” and they hand out small items such as flowers. They live low-tech lives in their communal home on Dalna, surrounded by farmland, which they tend. Families are celebrated and children are taught in groups by cult members.

A VIOLENT UNDERBELLY

The Path of the Open Hand is led by Elicia Zeveron, known to her followers as the Mother. She conceals from them the fact that she’s mildly Force-sensitive, and she uses her abilities in secret to con her followers while taking advantage of their generosity and support. Her second-in-command is the Herald, an intimidating Nautolan with a mysterious, violent past.

The Mother pretends to believe in the Path's laws. She says that avoiding use of the Force is an effort toward peace. At the same time, she stokes violence. She recruits some members of the cult into a group known as the Children. They steal valuable artifacts that are strong in the Force, and stockpile weapons. The Mother also has agents stationed throughout the galaxy. They encourage chaos that will benefit the Mother, such as the war between the planets Eiram and E'ronoh, which weakens the Jedi and the Republic.

Other members of the Path don't know what the Children do. In fact, no one in the Path knows the Mother's true origins until her Jedi sister, Oliviah, encounters them. Oliviah reveals that Elicia has been lying about her motives and concealing her own Force sensitivity.

LEGACY OF BLOOD

Discovering the truth about the Mother leads to the end of the Path of the Open Hand, though the influence of the cult on the galaxy continues even after it dissolves. True believer Marda Ro transforms it into the Path of the Closed Fist, which in turn inspires the formation of the Nihil. Generations later, a group known as the Elders of the Path will hold similar beliefs about the Force, and forbid its use among members.

ELECIA ZEVERTON

THE MOTHER

PRONOUNS: She/her

SPECIES: Human

HEIGHT: 1.60 m (5 ft 3 in)

ALLEGIANCE: Path of the Open Hand

FIRST APPEARANCE: PoD

Elicia Zeverton transforms the Path of the Open Hand from a simple, frugal community into a powerful cult. But she is a con artist, out to gather as much wealth as she can for herself. She uses the Path to that end, impressing its members with her concealed Force abilities, which she uses to grow a lush garden during a lean season. Elicia calls herself “the Mother” and tells her new followers that she won’t tolerate use of the Force by anyone. The Mother also forms the Children, a gang of young thieves within the cult. In secret, they collect Force artifacts for her, and Elicia’s influence and wealth grows.

SHOWDOWN ON JEDHA

Forced to flee the planet Dalna in the cult’s ship, the Gaze Electric, the Mother moves the Path of the Open Hand to Jedha. There, the Path clashes with the Convocation of the Force, a group that connects various Force sects. The Path’s former leader, the Herald—now second-in-command to the Mother—pushes the Path to become more public and more violent.

TRUTH AND VENGEANCE

Eventually, the conflict between the Path of the Open Hand and the Convocation comes to a head and Elecia leaves the Herald behind. However, he is present later, when Elecia's sister, Jedi Knight Oliviah Zeveron, reveals that the Mother is a charlatan. Elecia's most loyal follower, Marda Ro, is present as well, and it is too much for her to take. She unleashes the Nameless creature known as the Leveler and lets it feed on the Mother, thus ending Elecia's reign.

THE NIHIL

While the Republic and Jedi explore the vast reaches of space, a hidden threat lurks in the unknown. The Nihil are pirates with a secret weapon: they have access to hyperspace paths that are unknown to anyone else. This allows them to sneak up on their prey and emerge from space unexpectedly and (usually) violently, before vanishing completely. Led by the ruthless and ambitious Marchion Ro, the Nihil are driven by a love of bloodshed and chaos. When not out raiding in their various starships, they party their days away at their base, the space station known as the Great Hall of the Nihil.

PLUNDER AND SPICE

All members of the Nihil want the same things: money and loot. They prey on unsuspecting space travelers, intercepting and breaching their victims' ships. Then they stun the crew with gas and steal or ransack their way from there. A few Nihil serve the group in other ways. Dr. Kisma Uttersond earns his keep by caring for the elderly Mari San Tekka, scientist Zadina Mkampa invents cruel weapons, and some Nihil members go undercover for long periods of time before completing their missions of espionage, assassination, or sabotage.

RIDING THE STORM

Although the day-to-day life of the Nihil is wild and chaotic, there is some order. Marchion Ro, known as the Eye of the Nihil, rules the Nihil. He delegates to three lieutenants known as the Tempest Runners. Each Tempest Runner commands a fleet of ships led by squadron leaders called Storms. Below them are Nihil fighters known as Clouds and new recruits called Strikes. These underlings make up the bulk of the Nihil forces.

The higher in rank each Nihil is, the more they are respected and the larger a cut of the plunder they get. This structure breeds rivalry, which means most members are as wary of their fellow Nihil as they are of their enemies. Marchion Ro keeps a tight hold of his position as Eye, keeping the precious hyperspace paths close to his chest to retain his power and advantage over the rest.

ETERNAL ENEMIES

Where the Jedi and Republic rely on order, the Nihil thrive on chaos. The sight of a Nihil starship is enough to cause fear on any ship or world in the galaxy. The Nihil resent the Republic and hate the Jedi. They plot and scheme to undermine their enemies in a myriad ways: infiltration by spies, unleashing deadly monsters, and relentless, regular raids. They also attack gatherings, such as the Republic Fair on Valo, and locations, including Starlight Beacon.

He plans his goals carefully and uses intrigue as often as force.

SECRETIVE SCHEMES

Marchion is behind many underhanded plots that help him grow in power and spread his influence far and wide. He works with undercover traitor Ghirra Starros, a Republic senator. He keeps the ancient Mari San Tekka alive in a medical pod and pretends to be in league with the Republic so Mari will share her secret knowledge of unmapped hyperspace lanes. Meanwhile, he keeps his three fleet leaders—known as Tempest Runners—competitive by causing them to constantly fight among themselves. Marchion imprisons Jedi Master Loden Greatstorm and oversees the large-scale Nihil attack on the Republic Fair on Valo. And it was Marchion who planned the Great Disaster, causing the destruction of Legacy Run.

THE NAMELESS

Marchion's family holds knowledge of ancient weapons, including the Nameless. These mysterious creatures can overwhelm Force-sensitive beings. Marchion retrieves one of the few known Nameless from secret ice caves on the planet Rystan. He brings this Nameless—known as the Great Leveler—into the wider galaxy for the first time, and releases it on the planet Grizal. This proves devastating for the Jedi, who are affected badly by the powers of the Nameless. Jedi Loden Greatstorm, a captive on the planet, is the first Jedi to die. Under Marchion's control, the Leveler turns many other Jedi into stone husks.

VOICES FROM THE PAST

Throughout his life, Marchion is haunted by the voice of his deceased father, Asgar Ro. Marchion never got along with his father, who was the previous Eye of the Nihil. Marchion believed his father never brought the Nihil to their full cruel potential, while Asgar often belittled his son. Much of Marchion's chaotic ambition is driven by his father's greed, as well as an old grudge against the Jedi and Republic. As Marchion leads the Nihil into more dangerous battles, the voice of Asgar's memory cautions that the Leveler is too powerful for even Marchion to control, perhaps unstoppable. But whether Marchion will heed the warnings of his dead father, only time will tell.

LOURNA DEE

RUTHLESS NIHIL TEMPEST RUNNER

PRONOUNS: She/her

SPECIES: Twi'lek

HEIGHT: 1.68 m (5 ft 6 in)

ALLEGIANCE: Herself

FIRST APPEARANCE: LotJ

Louna Dee is a Nihil Tempest Runner known for her cruelty. Her ship, the Louna Dee, is named after the one person she trusts in the galaxy—herself. Guarded and secretive, she and her crew never say more than is necessary to outsiders, and they are always scheming to stay one step ahead of everyone else. Louna will double-cross anyone to gain more power. She is watchful of her fellow Tempest Runners, ensuring that there are no plans to challenge the Nihil Eye Marchion Ro—unless she is involved in them.

BETRAYAL

As a young Twi'lek, Louna is part of the first family of the colony world Aaloth. Her boyfriend stages a coup against her father and sells Louna to Zygerrian criminals. The Jedi rescue her and encourage her to enroll in the Carida Military Academy. But Louna grows frustrated there and takes off in a stolen starfighter. She crosses paths with Nihil Tempest Runner Pan Eyta, and Louna ends up joining the group of marauders, who later help her exact revenge on her ex-boyfriend on Aaloth.

RIISING UP THE RANKS

Louna's successes see her promoted again and again within the Nihil organization, drawing the attention of the Eye, Marchion Ro. Louna's influence enables her to convince Marchion to approve a mission to abduct the wealthy Blythe family for ransom. During the raid, Louna captures a valuable prisoner, Jedi Master Loden Greatstorm. She brings him to Marchion, who holds him captive on his ship.

ALWAYS SCHEMING

Louna has no problem going behind Marchion's back to improve her own situation. She recruits hyperspace scientist Chancey Yarrow to work on a gravity-well projector for the Nihil. But what Marchion doesn't know is that Louna's true objective is to manipulate him into lending her his most prized possession—the person who provides Marchion with hyperspace paths.

Louna later leads the Nihil attack on the Republic Fair on Valo, where she seeks the death of Chancellor Lina Soh. Due to her visibility during the attack, Louna is presumed to be the leader of the Nihil, which eventually brings her to the attention of Jedi Master Avar Kriss.

— Louna Dee

DARING ESCAPE

On Xais, Louna releases a Nameless creature on the Jedi Keeve Trennis and Terec to see the effects the monster has on them. Soon after, Avar Kriss tracks Louna to the Nihil's secret hideout in No-Space. Louna loses a hand in battle with Avar and is captured. However, the chaos resulting from an explosion on Starlight Beacon gives Louna a chance to escape. She overwhelms Jedi OrbaLin before stealing the Ataraxia and disappearing into space.

From his flagship, the Elegencia, he commands a Tempest of ships full of pirates who tend to be similar to him—put-together and particular, even as they create chaos. Pan has made a name for himself for his habit of killing his enemies.

RACE TO THE BOTTOM

While Pan resents Marchion Ro's "easy" path to Nihil leadership, he often feuds with fellow Tempest Runners, including Louna Dee, for Ro's approval and support. Pan, however, isn't one for playing nice, and he clashes with Ro enough that the Nihil leader poisons him. Ultimately it's rivalry with his supposed allies that destroys Pan, when his death comes by Louna's hand.

Marchion punishes Kassav, and Kassav decides to sell out the Nihil to Eriadu. Before Kassav can switch sides, though, Eriadu's governor shoots him dead.

Shalla is careful not to reveal the Nihil to the wider galaxy too quickly. For this reason, she hesitates to overuse her captive Mari San Tekka's new hyperspace paths. DRENGIR

CARNIVOROUS PLANT CREATURES

SPECIES: Drengir

HEIGHT: Varies

ALLEGIANCE: None

FIRST APPEARANCE: ItD

The Drengir are sentient plants that have only one thing on their mind—food! They feast on any and all living things, preferably while their prey is still alive. Drengir enjoy scaring their victims, and they call out “Meat! Meat!” while hunting. Tentacles grab and trap their prey, entering their mouths and nostrils to poison them and suck out nutrients. Lightsaber strikes have little effect on Drengir, which makes them difficult for even the Jedi to kill. Nihil marauders take advantage of the Drengir’s insatiable hunger and seed them throughout the galaxy as a strategic weapon against the Jedi.

ROOT-MIND

The Drengir’s thoughts are connected so they communicate as one collective—a root-mind that wants to grow and take over its surroundings. Drengir target young or weak civilians, gaining strength so they can spread out and control more territory.

THE DRENGIR AWAKEN

When several ships land on the plant-covered, abandoned Amaxine space station, many of the travelers feel a sinister presence and experience disturbing visions. The Jedi on board remove statues from the station that they don’t realize were put in place by the Sith years ago to keep the Drengir in a deep slumber. Once the spell is broken, the Drengir start hunting and

Rows of razor-sharp teeth

their root-mind awakens throughout the galaxy. The Drengir go on to attack Sedri Minor, Banchii, and even the space station Starlight Beacon.

THE GREAT PROGENITOR

The first Drengir, the Great Progenitor, is the leader of the collective mind and the key to defeating this dangerous species. On the Drengir homeworld of Mulita, the Progenitor targets Jedi Master Avar Kriss, wanting to use her strong connection to all Jedi as a weapon against them. But other Jedi on Mulita, including Keeve Trennis, work together to break the Progenitor's connection to the root-mind and imprison her—thus saving the galaxy from the Drengir threat.

THE NAMELESS

FORCE EATERS

SPECIES: Nameless

HEIGHT: Varies

ALLEGIANCE: Path of
the Open Hand, Nihil

FIRST APPEARANCE: TRS

The dreaded Shrii-Ka-Rai have been the subject of Jedi legend since time immemorial. As children, Jedi Stellan Gios and Emerick Caphtor were sung a lullaby about them. The true nature of these creatures remains hidden for a long time, shrouded in myth, resulting in them becoming known as the monsters of bedtime stories, referred to as the "Nameless." What the Jedi learn is that the Nameless are ferocious beasts with an appetite for the Force.

There are rumors that they come from a mysterious planet in Wild Space, but if anyone knows anything about it, it would seem they've kept it to themselves.

FORCE HUNGER

A Nameless attack can happen very slowly or all at once, but any Force user who comes into contact with a Nameless will eventually feel the effects of their hunger. First, a Force user will feel overwhelming, blinding confusion and terror. Then they'll experience terrifying visions as they struggle to perceive the physical form of the Nameless itself. These visions will likely be based on the Force user's insecurities, and can warp the appearance of the Nameless or the people around them. If the Force user doesn't escape at this point, they'll quickly become unable to move at all. In the final stage of a Nameless attack, the Force-sensitive victim will have their energy drained and their body completely transformed into a stonelike husk, which eventually crumbles into dust.

THE NAMELESS AND THE PATH

Prospector Radicaz "Sunshine" Dobbs brings a Nameless egg to the Mother, who keeps it at her side. After hatching, the baby Nameless, deadly even in its bloblike early form, calcifies the Jedi Zallah Macri. Next, it solidifies into its fully-grown, four-legged shape.

The Mother and the Path of the Open Hand also come into possession of the Rod of Seasons, which can control the Nameless. Two other artifacts, the Rod of Ages and the Rod of Daybreak, are also known to exist.

REVIVAL

One hundred and fifty years later, when the Nameless are thought to be myth, Nihil leader Marchion Ro rediscovers his ancestors' shrine to the Nameless and retrieves one creature from where it has been frozen in ice. The Nihil unleash Nameless on the Jedi in numerous clashes, including on Starlight Beacon during its fall. Very few Jedi have proven able to survive a Force-depleting Nameless attack.

GALACTIC REPUBLIC

The Galactic Republic is a democratic body that governs planets throughout the galaxy. The elected Republic chancellors are tasked with keeping peace among its members, liaising with senators from member planets, and encouraging new worlds to join.

EXPLORATION AND COLLABORATION

During the High Republic era, the heart of the Republic lies in the Core Worlds—mainly Coruscant, Corellia, Alderaan, and Hosnian Prime. As trade routes and hyperspace travel expand and exploration teams head into the Outer Rim frontier, the reach and the influence of the Republic extends ever further. Co-chancellors Kyong Greylark and Orlen Mollo work to establish relationships with frontier worlds. Decades later, Chancellor Lina Soh makes a name for herself with her Great Works projects, including the space station Starlight Beacon, located at the edge of the Outer Rim—a symbol of the greatness of the Republic.

UNITED GALACTIC GOALS

The Republic and the Jedi Order join forces against galactic threats and work together on many initiatives, including Pathfinder teams, which are made up of both Jedi and Republic crew. While the Republic is made up of many different worlds, the goal of a unified galaxy remains a dream worth fighting for.

PATHFINDER TEAMS

The Galactic Republic is going through an age of growth and exploration. To aid these efforts, the Republic and Jedi Order combine their resources to create Pathfinder teams. The goal of these teams—consisting of Republic officers and Jedi—is to explore new worlds in the frontier, administer aid when needed, and improve communications to solidify relationships with civilizations who may one day join the Republic.

ADVENTURE AWAITS

A Pathfinder team typically includes five members: a Republic pilot, medic, and droid, and a Jedi Master and Padawan. Each should have a love of the unknown and be prepared for anything. It is crucial that Pathfinders trust one another completely because they will need to rely on their training and instincts when missions take them to worlds with dangerous terrain or inhabitants. The Jedi who lead the teams need to be masters in diplomacy, teamwork, combat, and survival. Successful Pathfinder missions are publicly celebrated and the teams go down in history for their efforts.

WORKING TOGETHER

In many instances, Pathfinder teams reach remote locations where communications have not been set up. Because of these challenges, Pathfinder teams work closely with Republic communications teams, which are made up of two engineers and EX communication droids. As Pathfinder missions discover new worlds and travel routes, the comms team uses hyperspace buoys to install new comms lines. Once the systems are set up, the Jedi may choose to establish a permanent presence there, building outposts to act as bases for future missions.

SKILLED TEAM

The Jedi Master of a Pathfinder team has many roles. They serve as the team leader, as well as a teacher and mentor to their Padawan. The missions are inherently dangerous, so the bond between master and Padawan must be strong. Pilots must be skilled to fly in unknown terrain and able to repair their ship if it gets damaged. Medics need the confidence to give care despite being far from hospitals, and they are often called upon to help citizens they meet on missions, some of whom have anatomies different from anything they've seen before. GT astromech droids are the droid of choice for most Pathfinder teams. They help with repairs, scan items, and communicate with EX droids.

FIRST APPEARANCE: Con

Chancellor Kyong Greylark spends more time on Coruscant than her co-chancellor, Orlen Mollo. Kyong is the one who handles the day-to-day affairs of the Republic Senate. She is savvy and skeptical, and doesn't take Orlen's or the Jedi Order's words at face value. Kyong believes in justice and discipline, and—with her Republic military academy training—she is not to be underestimated.

LETTING GO OF POWER

Kyong faces a tough decision during the Battle of Dalna. Her son, Axel, reveals that he is a member of the Path of the Open Hand, and that the Mother plans to use him as leverage to get to Kyong. Kyong's solution is to step down from her position as chancellor, removing any chance the Path has of gaining power by using her son against her.

TYPE: Communication droid
HEIGHT: (with legs extended)
97 cm (3 ft 2 in)

ALLEGIANCE: Galactic Republic
FIRST APPEARANCE: QftHC

EX communication droids are vital to the growth and exploration of the galaxy. Republic comms teams use EX droids to send messages. The droids are small but incredibly tough, often traveling alone through the far reaches of space to deliver information.

They are often placed into thruster pods and rockets to fly at great speeds, and are designed not to burn up while entering or exiting atmospheres.

THE GREAT FRONTIER

EX droids are crucial in areas of the galaxy without communications buoys, or where the buoys have been hijacked or damaged. Jedi Master Rok Buran and his Pathfinder team send EX-8C out for help after they are attacked on Gloam. Kyong Greylark also uses EX droids to relay her message that she is stepping down as chancellor.

LINA SOH

SUPREME CHANCELLOR OF THE GALACTIC REPUBLIC

PRONOUNS: She/her

SPECIES: Human

HEIGHT: 1.70 m (5 ft 7 in)

ALLEGIANCE: Galactic Republic

FIRST APPEARANCE: LotJ

The Galactic Republic's strongest champion, Lina Soh, puts all her time and energy into developing and protecting the Republic she was elected to serve. Soh is known for her "Great Works," a group of projects she set up in the hope of bringing more Outer Rim worlds into the embrace of the Republic. She has a close relationship with the Jedi Order. They work on various projects together, ranging from peace treaties to the installation of cross-galaxy communications relays.

GREAT WORKS

Some of Soh's most ambitious projects include Starlight Beacon and the Republic Fair. Starlight Beacon, a space station run by a mix of Republic officials and Jedi, is the Republic's Outer Rim outpost. It sends out beacons that boost communications across the frontier and serves as a safe haven for those in need. The Republic Fair on the frontier planet Valo is intended to be a celebration of peace, unity, and hope—a symbol of the Republic's great achievements.

Lina's twin targons, Matari and Voru, are loyal only to her

Targons have four eyes and tufted tails

Robes chosen purposefully for each occasion

NIHIL THREAT

Soh's grand plans for the galaxy are threatened by the Great Disaster and the resulting dangers to hyperspace travel. She closes down many hyperspace lanes, a politically risky decision, but one she hopes will ensure the safety of Republic citizens. When the Nihil are discovered to be behind the catastrophe, Soh rallies the Republic and the Jedi to spare nothing in the effort to stop them.

PERSONAL STRUGGLES

Not everyone in Soh's family is thrilled with her high-profile career. Her son, Kitrep, shies away from the spotlight and only begrudgingly attends the Republic Fair on Valo. Soh is aware that the Nihil remain a threat to the Republic, but she insists that the Fair proceed. She firmly believes it will be of immense benefit to the citizens of the Republic.

AFTERMATH

Soh is mistaken, and is gravely injured when the Nihil attack the Fair—but her immediate thoughts are not for herself. She fears for her son who is caught up in the attack, and she deeply regrets her arrogance for opening the Fair despite the Nihil threat. Soh commands the Republic Defense Coalition to muster a fleet against Marchion Ro. She wants the Republic's citizens to know they will not be abandoned during difficult times.

"I WANT THESE NIHIL BROUGHT TO JUSTICE. EVERY LAST ONE."

— Lina Soh

STARLIGHT BEACON

One of the Great Works of Republic Chancellor Lina Soh, the space station Starlight Beacon is a shining example of what the Republic and Jedi can accomplish together. Built in the Outer Rim territories, where hyperspace travel and communications lines are still being developed, Starlight Beacon is the Republic's largest outreach effort to support the frontier. Starlight Beacon broadcasts a signal that can be heard far into the galaxy. The signal boosts existing communications lines and also serves as a welcome invitation to anyone in need.

COMMUNITY

Starlight Beacon is home to both Republic and Jedi staff. The space station has quarters for workers, visitors, and Jedi—some of whom are permanently stationed there. The docking bay welcomes ships from across the galaxy. A hospital, research tower, library, canteens, and meditation zones make Starlight Beacon a community of its own. Jedi Master Estala Maru and Republic officer Rodor Keen work together to run the day-to-day activities of the station. Their jobs are a never-ending challenge because every day on Starlight is different.

AID EFFORTS

Depending on the need of the time, Starlight is used as a meeting place for conferences, an evacuation location for Outer Rim worlds in danger, or as a base of operations for the Jedi in their fight against galactic threats. As a mobile base, it can even be towed to planets in distress to offer on-site aid.

After a volcanic catastrophe on Dalna, many ships tow Starlight to help in the rescue efforts there. Shortly after, Starlight flies over the planet Eiram to try to help a population under threat from massive cyclones.

THE FALL OF STARLIGHT

As a symbol of the combined strength of the Republic and the Jedi, Starlight Beacon becomes a target for those who wish to sow chaos in the galaxy. The Republic is betrayed by one of its own senators, Ghirra Starros, who steals schematics of the space station and hands them over to the Nihil. Nihil spies infiltrate the station and set off a bomb. The presence of Nameless creatures prevents the Jedi from being able to save the station, which breaks apart. As the Republic and Jedi reel from the loss of Starlight, Chancellor Lina Soh vows to not leave the Outer Rim territories in darkness.

CITIZENS

Space travelers can expect to meet all sorts of citizens on their adventures, from royalty, mercenaries, and pilots to bartenders, Force users, and pirates.

FORCE HUB

The Holy City on Jedha attracts a large number of Force-worshipping groups and is home to the Convocation of the Force, an organization that connects Force sects, each with their own Force philosophies. The local Enlightenment bar caters to an always evolving mix of travelers and pilgrims.

NEW PATHS THROUGH SPACE

In this time of growth, hyperspace prospecting is a popular, yet risky, way to make a fortune. Prospectors map and sell hyperspace paths as a living. Buyers can make the routes public, though some keep them secret, using them to gain advantage over others.

RULE MAKERS AND RULE BREAKERS

From the Core Worlds to the Unknown Regions, pirates, outlaws, and criminals cause chaos while Republic patrols, lawmakers, and Jedi strive to keep order. Some groups loom larger than others, but citizens everywhere remain the constant heartbeat of an ever-changing galaxy.

CONVOCAATION OF THE FORCE

Jedha is home to many groups that worship the Force in some way. The Convocation of the Force is an organization that aims to generate peace and understanding between different Force sects. The Convocation includes representatives from various groups, all of which have different histories and beliefs about the power and meaning of the Force. While the goal of the Convocation is to bring diverse groups together, it has also become a target for those who see the Force—and Force users—as a threat.

JEDI ORDER

The Jedi believe that the Force is an energy field created by all living things that binds the galaxy together and gives them their power. The Jedi stay true to the light side of the Force, strong in their belief that anger, hate, and fear are paths to the dark side.

GUARDIANS OF THE WHILLS

The Guardians of the Whills, who strive to be one with the Force, are one of the oldest groups on Jedha. Guardians protect the Temple of the Kyber, the ancient artifacts that are stored there, and the many pilgrims who have traveled from afar to visit the temple.

MATUKAI

The Matukai are a sect who see themselves as defenders of the light side of the Force. Their philosophy leads many of them to have extremely negative opinions of groups associated with the dark side, such as the Yacombe, who they believe are dark-side worshippers.

SORCERERS OF TUND

The Sorcerers of Tund are a group of mystics associated with the dark side of the Force. They refer to the Force as "the Unity."

LONTO

The Lonto are light-side Force users with a special connection to nature. Through a mystical power they use vines, plants, and leaves to protect and heal others.

DISCIPLES OF THE WHILLS

Disciples of the Whills, customarily seen wearing red robes, seek to understand the will of the Force through meditation. As such, they do not shun the dark side as they believe that it and the light side must always remain in balance.

FALLANASSI

The Fallanassi refer to the light side of the Force as the "white current" and the dark side of the Force as the "dark tide." They train to use the light side of the Force, and are adept at projecting illusions of themselves to other parts of the galaxy.

CHURCH OF THE FORCE

Members of the Church of the Force are not Force-sensitive, but they choose to follow many of the same teachings as the Jedi Order. Along with the Disciples and Guardians of the Whills, Church of the Force members honor the Temple of the Kyber as a holy site.

This puts him at odds with former Guardian Tey Sirrek, who wants to help anyone in need on Jedha.

"IT IS NOT YOU THAT WE HAVE A PROBLEM WITH, JEDI—IT'S THAT TRAITOR."

ENLIGHTENMENT BAR

BAR SCENE

Visitors to Enlightenment will first notice the big, red double doors marked with the bar's name. Guarding them are the Twinkle Sisters, a pair of hulking Gloovan bodyguards ready to toss out anyone who gets too rowdy. At the bar sit regulars such as Moona, Piralli, and Keth Cerapath, loosening their tongues with goblets of retsa or blue mappa. The Iktotchi musician Madelina plays the electro-harp in the background, producing music that some find soothing even though it sounds like a strange, looping noise. Visitors are likely to hear tall tales of derring-do rising above the babble of voices, music, and laughter.

ALL OPINIONS WELCOME

Enlightenment's doors are open to any being of any creed—light side, dark side, or something entirely different. For that reason, energetic but (usually) friendly debates abound on the nature of the Force and the universe. Conversations are generally loud and raucous here, in contrast to the Patrons may not find the spiritual enlightenment the name claims, yet Jedha's Enlightenment bar is a place where people from various Force sects can mingle peacefully. Owner Kradon Minst often joins his regular bartender, Chantho, at the counter to serve drinks. Kradon makes the most of his diverse mix of visitors to ply his trade as an information broker, selling or trading gossip and chatter. Many beings who have business on Jedha or nearby find themselves in Enlightenment—from mysterious Force worshippers and dusty droids to hyperspace prospectors and Jedi.

hushed, reverent tones used in the local houses of worship. However, the exchange of ideas in Enlightenment is still faithful—worshippers of different sects usually wish each other well before going back out into the world with their separate beliefs.

BACK DOOR

During the Battle of Jedha, the bar comes under siege. Kradon keeps business going even while people shelter from the riot outside. The crowd eventually breaks into the bar, shattering its back doors. However, Kradon has installed energy fields that can shield the bar even if its physical walls are knocked down. Wily Kradon also hides the fact that a hidden trapdoor leads to an old smugglers' tunnel, dug back in the days when the Jedi had a stronger presence on Jedha. It stretches all the way to the desert outside the city. The passageway is falling apart and infested with vermin, but it's still a way out in a pinch.
